PROJECTS | PROJECT 1

This project was a music search application that allows users to search for top songs by artist, featured playlists, find music by genre, and more. It utilizes a third-party API called Audio DB, ticket master, and New York Times db. My main role in this project was the Audio DB API call and using that on the search page to return top songs by that artist, with links to those songs.

PROJECT 2

This project was a food search application that allows users to search for foods, add ingredients to a shopping list, and then go shopping to then add to their fridge. This application used third-party API's as well as a backend and database, mySQL. My role in this project was handling all of the backend, setting up server side, creating and using database, and handling the paths on the page.
